

SpiceBox Organics Opens in Tseung Kwan O with a Green-Centric, Health Focused Market & Café

16 Oct | Written By Eunice Lim

To commemorate SpiceBox Organics' 10th year in Hong Kong, the company has opened a new market and café at Capri Place in Tseung Kwan O.

At SpiceBox Organics' newest location, they specialise in nutrient-dense dishes that cater to all dietary needs and has features that are unique to the Tseung Kwan O community.

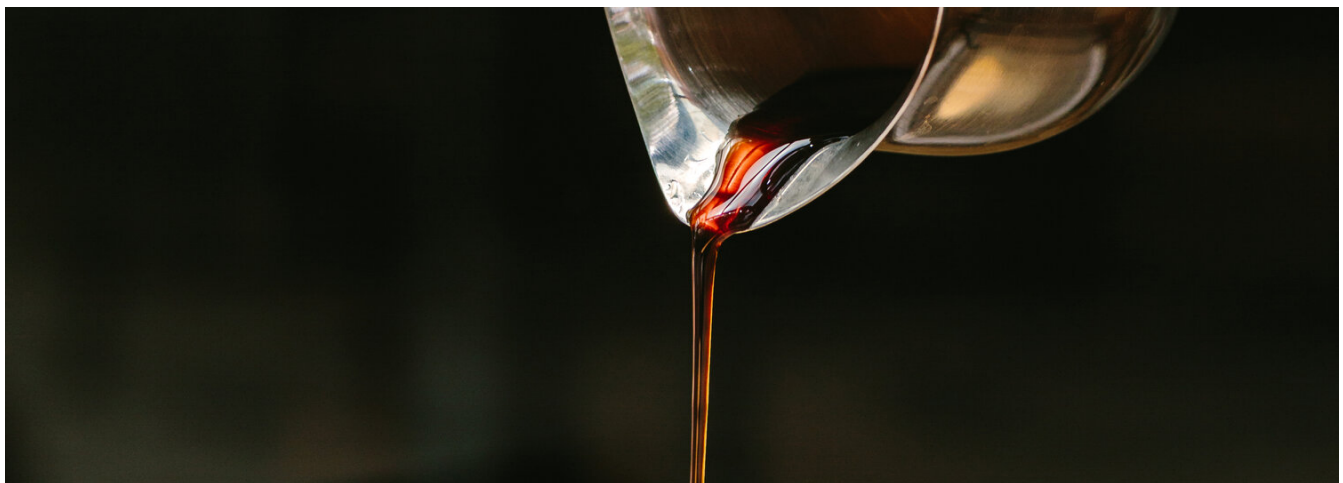

From freshly brewed Kombucha on tap by local, long-time vendor Taboocha, eco-friendly to ethically sourced SeaChange wines by the glass and bottle, you can expect an extensive variety of bulk grocery products that promote zero-waste philosophy, and even self-serve sparkling and flat filtered water by carbon neutral company Belu that are exclusively at this new venue.

“For a very long time, I have been interested in opening a SpiceBox Organics in the Sai Kung District, and I am thrilled to have finally found such a nice location at O-South Coast, with a family-based community that is health conscious,” says Punam Chopra, owner and founder of SpiceBox Organics.

SpiceBox Organics Tseung Kwan O is an all-inclusive, community-friendly venue with a 1300 square foot space for dine-in guests with both indoor and outdoor seats. There is a delectable, nutritious food for everyone on the excellent café menu, which uses only the highest quality organic and natural products and has been 100 percent vegetarian from the company's founding, with a strong emphasis on gluten-free, vegan, and keto.
